MONTPELIER

Hearing Held in Bankruptcy Case of Jellyman & Jones.
The first hearing in the bankruptcy proceedings of Jellyman & Jones, the recently suspended granite firm, was held yesterday before Referee W. N. Theriault. Robert Fraser was appointed trustee, and T. E. Callahan, E. A. Sweetney and S. H. Mills, appraisers. The liabilities of the firm are placed at $11,048.81 and the assets at $7,613.74. Among the debts is one of $128.70 due the City of Montpelier for taxes and $159.32 due employees for wages. Some of the heaviest creditors are the First National bank, $4,450; Boutwell, Milne & Varnum company, $2,088.80; First National bank, of Zanesville, O., $442.30; Elliott National bank of Boston, $1,321.70 and the Consolidated Lighting company, $875 for electric power. The plant on Barre street is appraised at $3,875 and the stock on hand valued at $1,044.30. Debts due the firm aggregate over $1,000. Another hearing of the creditors will take place within a few weeks.

There seems to be a catch in the lease drawn up by the Central Vermont railway for the Langdon meadow, which the city of Montpelier wishes to use as a ball ground. The land is said to have been offered the city for $25 a year, which was accepted and a baseball diamond laid out, also a bridge across the river. The lease only recently arrived and reads "rent and taxes," which is a very different matter, there being about 50 acres of land in the field and some buildings. AMUSEMENT NOTES

Edison Talking Pictures at Barre Opera House Wednesday Night.

Thomas A. Edison grasped a world-wide problem by offering his latest invention to the ladies in the cause of suffrage. Next Wednesday night at the opera house a talking picture, devoted to famous women of the cause, will be seen and heard. The Edison talking pictures will bring to Barre the real element of sensationalism in speech and action. Each woman delivers a short speech in favor of suffrage and whether you are for or against the movement you will want to hear what some of the brightest minds in the work have to say on the subject.

The ladies of the films who will entertain you are Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw of New York, one of the most active workers in America, a college graduate, a society leader and an earnest fighter against the white slave traffic. Miss Elizabeth Freeman, official speaker of the recent "hike" from New York to Washington. Miss Freeman is an active worker in the Wage Earners' league. She was for several years a member of the Woman's Social and Political union of England. Miss Harriet May Mills, president of the woman suffrage party of New York state. Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, secretary to Dr. Anna Shaw; Mrs. John Rogers, jr.; Mrs. Anna Ross Weeks; Mrs. Cyrus Field; Mrs. John Winters Brannon, daughter of the late Charles Dana of the New York Sun; and Col. L. M. Craft, the famous "hiker" and public speaker.

Local suffragists are intensely interested in this new phase of the Edison talking pictures as offering one of the best methods for widespread work for the cause.
This, however, is only one of more than a score of different subjects offered by the management for the evening's entertainment will cover comedy, tragedy, opera, light and grand; stars from the dramatic field as well as several headliners in vaudeville.—Adv.

Latlip Exposition Shows.

The management of Inter-city park announce that they have secured at a very large expense to them, the Capt. David Latlip Exposition shows, which come to this city for one week commencing Monday, July 28. The papers where this company have exhibited speak very highly of the shows, as well as the management of same, nothing being carried with them that is in the least bit objectionable to the most fastidious person.

The exposition shows are playing to very large audiences at St. Johnsbury, where they are exhibiting this week, and their patrons do not seem to find words that capably explain the fun and amusement obtained therefrom. Band concerts will be given twice daily under the direction of Prof. William Cardinal, the former cornet soloist, who needs no introduction in this part of New England, having been premier soloist with the Salem Cadet and Reeves American bands. There are also numerous free attractions and upon the request of the management of Inter-city park, admission to the park will be absolutely free.
Capt. Latlip makes a thrilling and death-defying dive from a ladder 110 feet in height twice daily. This attraction is worth going several miles to see and is also numbered among the several other free attractions.—Adv.

OVEROILING THE ROADS.
Practice Often Injures Many Cars—Top Surface Drenched.
The indifference with which road oil is smeared and splashed on the roads has been the subject of many an automobilist's ire. It makes a topic for an interesting editorial comment by Horseless Age, which says: "Road oiling has now become an accepted practice in this country wherever there is a great deal of automobile traffic on macadam and earth roads leading through well-to-do residential districts. The practice benefits both the motorists and the residents, as the dust nuisance greatly detracts from the pleasures of motoring on roads where usually one car closely follows another, so that there is a cloud of dust constantly hovering over the landscape. But the way the oil is applied in many cases causes motorists a great deal of trouble."
The oil used for this purpose is of a heavy, sticky quality and partakes of the nature of tar. Usually a heavy application is made, so that one treatment will last through a whole season. To prevent the tar from adhering to the tires of vehicles, sand or dust is strewn over the road. However, the amount of sand used sometimes is quite insufficient, so that all of the sand is covered with liquid oil which causes it to stick to the tires and to be thrown forcibly against the mudguards and other parts, to which it may even adhere in thick layers. No doubt, many finely finished cars have had their finish ruined through this cause. It even happens that while

The oil is being applied some sections of road are allowed to lie for some time with the oil freshly applied, without anything on it to absorb the liquid.
"When road oiling is done the work ought to be so conducted that no unfinished sections of road are allowed to lay over night, and plenty of absorbent material should be put on top of the oil so that a firm and substantially dry road surface is formed almost immediately. Where roads are sufficiently wide to allow of four vehicles running side by side, it is a good plan to treat one side of the road at first and close that to traffic until the oiling is entirely done. The motorists in any community should consider it their duty to see to it that the oiling of their streets is properly done, as the local owners of cars naturally suffer the most from improper oiling.
